LOADED WITH HARD LUCK.

Several Bitter Experiences of a Youthful Runaway.

Young John Kathmer, an inexperienced boy, half-grown, left his home the other day with 100 marks in his pocket. Determined to see the world he booked for Berlin, intending to surprise a spinster aunt residing there, with whom, however, he was not personally acquainted. On reaching his destination he strolled about the city making inquiries for Aunt Kathmer's place of abode.

A woman accosted him: "What, you are from Abingdon? What is your name?" On hearing it, she exclaimed: "Himself! Why, then, I am your aunt; come home with me." Young Greenhorn did her bidding, they supped together, and he was sent to bed.

On awakening next morning he discovered that his clothes and his money were gone, and so, too, was his aunt. In his despair he rushed to the window in his nightshirt, crying out his misfortune to the passerby.

A woman responded to his appeal: "What! Will go and find your auntie?" said she, "and leave baby with you meanwhile?" Hours passed, with baby howling for subsistence.

At length a constable came to Johann's rescue with a suit of clothes, and bundled him and "his infant" off to the police station, where the inspector wired to the young man's father.

"Your son Johann is here with his infant. You can take them in charge on payment of the expenses incurred." Berlin Correspondence.

Forces of the North.
The forest area of all the British possessions in America is estimated at about 800,000,000 acres. The settler has cut his way into the fringe of the vast woodland, but his deprivations are nothing as compared with the terrific scourge of fire which has rampaged through it at different times.

Did you ever notice how the man who is too lazy to knock the ashes from his cigar will have to spend several moments later in brushing off his clothes?—Cambridge Press.

We apprehend that black cats, taken rough and running, have brought more than good luck.—Detroit Journal.
